

Interview 1

Unknown 0:11
Let's share, bro.

Unknown 0:13
You gotta do both anyway. Okay.

Unknown 0:16
Let

Unknown 0:19
me read it out, bro. Like,

Unknown 0:20
bro, um, I can't read.

Unknown 0:25
So, do you want to share a memory, a secret, a fact? A moment, event, or question of any of them? Yeah. Of the UQ page, right? UQ, just or just UQ?

Unknown 0:27
Anything you can.

Unknown 0:40
You had a fact. You had a cool fact. Ah, yeah.

Unknown 0:45
You know what? I'm a. I'm a right now. You're fact. Yeah.

Unknown 0:48
You only you can record it. Wait.

Unknown 0:53
Speak.

Unknown 0:54
Tap to speak. Yeah.

Unknown 0:56
Oh, the fact about. Why? Let me think about it. I need an interesting one. Is this a memory or

Unknown 1:08
recording, bro? Okay.

Unknown 1:12

Can I just say my favorite memory? Yeah. Okay, my favorite memory about UQ was so in my first year, I was in college, so the college life was definitely 100% way different than what I'd experienced in the past and stuff like that. UQ was such a nice place to you know bring everyone around and connect people in general. So yeah, that was probably like the best impression I had about UQ, which was bringing people together.

Unknown 1:49

Yeah, I'll leave this echo.

Unknown 1:57

Yeah, but I kind of want you to also go through and listen something just for like 10 seconds, but we just need an opinion on how would one like listen and

Unknown 2:08

watch.

Unknown 2:14

You want to click it?

Unknown 2:16

Do you want to watch or do you want to listen?

Unknown 2:19

Unknown 2:21

Paths are familiar. Students are heading to class, and someone is sitting by the lake, waiting for their next lecture. But what if you could hear what this place sounded like when students decided they weren't going?

Unknown 2:45

White.

Unknown 2:46

What just happened? That's

Unknown 2:47

okay. You can just play it again.

Unknown 3:00

Imagine war, government interfere. In 1966, students formed Students for Democratic Action. They were talking about Vietnam, but also nuclear war, conscription, poverty, government interference, and what democracy really meant. Something was changing. Students were beginning to realize that a university could be more than somewhere you went to study. It could be a place where you questioned the world around you, a place where you could argue, organize, speak out, and perhaps discover that your own voice could matter. Then came 1967. Around 4,000 students and staff marched from St Lucia towards Brisbane. They didn't have a permit, and as the march moved forward, police blocked their way. Imagine being there-1000s of people around you, the sound of footsteps, voices rising around you, police standing in front of you-and suddenly, the decision wasn't abstract anymore. Do you turn around? Do you go home? Do you stay?

Unknown 4:31

So it's three minutes long if you want to finish DeKan, but you don't have to. They sat down. Yeah, you can just say I'm done. You have to pick like what do you did it leave an impact on you?

Unknown 4:54

Sorry,

Unknown 4:55

I know that. Okay, so we have a few follow-up questions for this, if that's fine, could you pull up the question?

Unknown 5:04

Unknown 5:05

Yeah, but okay. So honestly, if there was like a bench over here, something that's like sharing stories to you about UQ, and maybe other students have like recorded stuff, would you listen to it? Would you engage with it? Honestly, probably once. I'll probably do it once, and then I'll forget about it and never do it ever again. You know what I mean?

Unknown 5:20

Unknown 5:28

Honestly, I would not listen to it, but I would read it. So if it's words, I would like, for example, if it's a post. Yeah, if it's like one passage, more like conclusions of stuff, I would take a look.

Unknown 5:38

Okay, so smaller things. If I had to like

Unknown 5:41

click play and listen and for like yeah,

Unknown 5:48

select text more than audios and videos. Yeah, if it's like

Unknown 5:52

like a little plague, you know, like when you go to like a museum or some shit. No, no, no. If you go to a museum or something, like they have like that description, like something like that, you know, like a little thing, bang. Takes like one minute to read, internalize, and then.

Unknown 6:07

So have you seen around campus? There are like little like things where you can like read stuff. Yeah.

Unknown 6:15

Yeah. I look like the one I looked at is actually at Gatton, the Gatton campus. They have this like the bird sporting area. They have that kind of stuff for like all the birds or like the history of that area. That was actually quite interesting. But yeah, other than that, I'm ready. Yeah.

Unknown 6:34

And where do you guys usually hang around on campus?

Unknown 6:37

I'm usually at the basketball court. We we don't go to class. Well, I would say like if I do great would be my favorite spot. That's because there's grass, the sun is out, and I feel very safe with like everything like surrounding me in some sense. And there's food, there's coffee. True. Okay. Yeah. So great work.

Unknown 6:40

Unknown 7:09

So when you usually okay, now that you've said that you don't go to class, so why do you come to campus mostly? Just to hang out or?

Unknown 7:15

Okay. So I just graduated. Oh yeah, yeah. So yeah, I I barely go to school anymore. I'm just here to meet him today. Like he's still at school, but we just decided to meet at school. It's a good hangout spot. Get some food, chill in the grass, and that's the whole lot.

Unknown 7:36

That's amazing. Thank you so much for

Unknown 7:39

like

Unknown 7:39

spending time with

Unknown 7:40

us.

Interview 2

Unknown 0:12

I think listen and discover. It's fine. You can go back if you want.

Unknown 0:43

Do

Unknown 0:55

you want to watch it or do you want to watch it? 1966

Unknown 1:03

at the University of Queensland, a new kind of student is showing up under the sandstone arches of the Great Court. Guitars and pamphlets are doing as much teaching as lectures. A group calling itself Students for Democratic Action starts asking the questions nobody in Canberra once asked about nuclear war, about poverty, about a government sending conscripts to a war few of them chose. It isn't a costume party. It's the beginning of a decade UQ will never fully put down. September 8, 1967. And into Brisbane, straight into a police line. The public assembly has been restricted, and marching is technically illegal. So they sit down right there on Rome Street. Dozens are arrested. It's remembered today as the Civil Liberties March. The moment UQ decided that defending the right to speak affected as much as anything being said. the end of the decade, Vietnam is just the opening question. At the lunchtime forum, students debate conscription, race, capitalism, and each other out in the open every single day. Vietnam leads to civil liberties. Civil liberties lead to everything else. On the eighth of May, 19 You can continue,

Unknown 2:37

or if you don't want to do it, you can just say

Unknown 2:39

I'm done. No, I want to watch. becomes something more than a building, a meeting place where Aboriginal and non-Indigenous activists organize side by side, campaigning against apartheid in South Africa and for Indigenous rights at home. Vietnam opened the door. Now Indigenous rights, race, and gender walk through it too. This isn't what caused a meeting. It's a whole 1977, Premier Job Yelka Peterson outdoor street marches outlined. What began as a protest about uranium mining becomes a fight over something bigger. Whether Queenslanders have the right to assemble at all, you two students march anyway. is never confined to one year's debate. It hit in the show notes, and the surrounding parts should be. The community radio station broadcasting from campus, where voices like Kev Carmody's found air. In 1981, several 1000 UQ students marched to Brisbane again. This time against university fees. The soundtrack has changed. The energy hasn't. 1985, UQ's 75th anniversary. University decides to award an honorary doctorate to Premier Jo Yelk and Peterson. 5,000 people disagree and gather outside main hall to stay safe. No one of the year echoes across the great court. It's the loudest question the university has ever asked. Like that first time we went to the one that was the only one. Jack Brown Grills, and then she gives American memorabilia every day.

Unknown 4:30

Unknown 5:22

Mainly feel active. It's okay. Yeah. Yeah. Anything

Unknown 5:31

you can.

Unknown 5:32

So continue. Is it? You don't have to. You don't have to. Want to do. Want to do one this story? Is the same film or not?

Unknown 5:54

Yeah, it's the same.

Unknown 6:01

Antonio, I love the culture.

Unknown 6:24

You don't have to like skip it. Okay. Would you like to share something? You don't have to. That's also a computer.

Unknown 7:00

Yeah, it's it's done. Yeah,

Unknown 7:04

that's it. So we just had some follow-up questions. How did you feel after seeing the video after having this experience? Did you enjoy yourself? Yeah, it's very funny. In fact, I think it is the

Unknown 7:20

about the history or culture about this school. It also have a last very sentence in different school. It's not the place you you learn something or just you maybe create something or push against something.

Unknown 7:37

Yeah,

Unknown 7:38

the the the what? How to say it? Creating is the famous center in this university, so I think it is the match thing.

Unknown 7:52

That's nice. So say that you know you're spending time here in grade court, and there's a device that lets you hear about UQ stories and stories of other people, everything like a mixture of everything, and you can leave stories behind as well. Would you interact with something like that? Let's show her a picture. Like, can you go to the questionnaire?

Unknown 8:15

Yeah.

Unknown 8:16

Right. The

Unknown 8:17

questionnaire.

Unknown 8:20

Where do you come from?

Unknown 8:21

Me? I'm from India.

Unknown 8:23

India, another India friend. You? India? Mind you?

Unknown 8:27

South Korea.

Unknown 8:27

South Korea. Oh, you Korean?

Unknown 8:30

Okay. I come from China.

Unknown 8:31

Oh. Okay. So, say that there's something like this attached to a bench, or something like this, or something like a book, and you have shade over it. But basically, the stories that we're sharing are like UQ stories and all of that. Would any of this make you want to sit there, interact with

Unknown 8:56

maybe this one? Which one? This

Unknown 8:58

1e.

Unknown 8:59

Yeah.

Unknown 9:00

Okay, and why? What? What about it makes it? The picture looks beautiful, and the book looks great.

Unknown 9:05

Unknown 9:07

Okay,

Unknown 9:09

because now we always have the electronic scream. I I'm not really interested in it, so it is more like an entertainment way.

Unknown 9:17

Okay,

Unknown 9:18

that's true. And is it the shade and everything that also entices you, or is it just like this part of the picture that you're just like, yeah, this is no

Unknown 9:27

the book the way the way

Unknown 9:28

the book is okay that's awesome, and how long do you like spend time alone here? Like say that in between classes or you have some time off, do you spend time around campus, like just sit and work maybe or hang out.

Unknown 9:43

In fact, I come. You mean that how long I come here? Or two months?

Unknown 9:48

Oh yeah, but like around campus, do you hang around? Like between classes. Like let's say you have class in the morning and one in the evening. So like, how would you spend that time?

Unknown 9:59

Ah, okay. I always spend my time. I don't know, just sometimes on the sitting on the grass, enjoy my time just like this. Or sometimes I just at home to do some entertainment, have some video, just like that.

Unknown 10:15

Okay, so this is the spot that you usually come to.

Unknown 10:18

Yeah.

Unknown 10:19

Okay. Have you explored anywhere else around the campus that you like?

Unknown 10:23

Not yet.

Unknown 10:25

Would you call yourself adventurous and exploratory? Like, would you spend time doing that? Like going around campus, finding different spots and all of that.

Unknown 10:36

I think for for for for more entertainment and new new events or something like that. Maybe I will go with my friends, start with some events.

Unknown 10:49

Awesome. Okay, that's about it from

Unknown 10:52

us. No.

Unknown 10:53

Yeah. Oh, thank you.

Interview 3

Unknown 0:04

Yeah. So, any any one of you can start the train. Should I?

Unknown 0:08

You can also do it together. Yeah. Discuss it and do it together. Together. Okay. Can you see it? Huh? Can you see it? Yeah.

Unknown 0:20

Unknown 0:28

You wanna listen? You got me there. Would you like to watch it or would you like to listen to it? really long video, so you can stop wherever and click. I'm done.

Unknown 1:36

At the University of Queensland, a new kind of student is showing up under the sandstone arches of the Great Court, guitars and pamphlets are doing as much teaching as lectures. A group calling itself Students for Democrat Capitalism and each other out in the open every single day. Vietnam leads to civil liberties. Civil liberties lead to everything else. On the eighth of May, 1970, 200,000 Australians joined the Vietnam moratorium, the largest protest this country has ever seen. Brisbane students are part of it. What started as one war has become an entire generation's argument with the world it was handed. 1971, the UQ Student Union becomes something more than a building, a meeting place where Aboriginal and non-Indigenous activists organize side by side, campaigning against apartheid in South Africa and for Indigenous rights at home. Vietnam opened the door. Now Indigenous rights, race, and gender walk through it too. This isn't one cause anymore. It's a whole way of seeing the country differently. You can be honest. You can be very honest, by the way.

Unknown 2:58

Unknown 3:00

I feel like my it's purely because of my listening comprehension that I need subtitles to like engage with a video.

Unknown 3:08

That's fine.

Unknown 3:10

Oh, see, you have no reaction.

Unknown 3:12

For that reason, it probably didn't grab me, but purely because I'm bad without subtitles. I know what is.

Unknown 3:19

Unknown 3:20

Um, I think it was some mini chili. It was like cold. Okay.

Unknown 3:30

And then you can just say add subtitles to it, maybe. That'll be a cool cover. I can just grab that. Subtitles. You don't have to listen to it, so I'll just skip this. So, which

Unknown 3:50

what do you think would be better, like an audio thing or like like the thing you watched, yeah,

Unknown 3:56

or both or text? What would you guys perform? What do you think is more than audio?

Unknown 4:05

I like both because if there's both, then there's subtitles.

Unknown 4:12

Okay, continue. What stayed with you? Like

Unknown 4:21

the history, yeah.

Unknown 4:28

This is not compulsory, but encouraged.

Unknown 4:43

Wait, what's the difference between like a moment and memory and a moment?

Unknown 4:50

Whatever you connect to, honestly, if it's like, of course there are whatever, and you don't have to if you don't. I guess

Unknown 4:57

like a memory is something that is not really related to the players, but something just that just happened in UQ. I think, yeah, a moment would be like something related to like a phase, yeah, or more memorable. Yeah. I'm trying.

Unknown 5:11

Unknown 5:17

I'm trying. Like I'm racking my brain for a memory.

Unknown 5:19

Or like an event that you guys maybe went to

Unknown 5:23

on the great court or just at UQ? Just anywhere,

Unknown 5:26

UK. Yep.

Unknown 5:39

That's right.

Unknown 5:48

I just realized it's more like a memory than right. If it's something

Unknown 5:52

like

Unknown 5:54

that, that's fine. Okay. Should

Unknown 6:09

I name drop? Anything you want to add?

Unknown 7:16

How was the experience, guys? Interesting. I like how it's like set up like a game.

Unknown 7:19

Unknown 7:21

Yeah, the interface is really nice, and I like the like aspect of leaving something to the next person. Yeah.

Unknown 7:28

Did you feel like you wanted to learn something in the beginning? Did you, or have you ever felt curious about this place?

Unknown 7:34

About like New History.

Unknown 7:39

Maybe like not like I didn't want to learn, but I probably like wouldn't have taken the initiative myself. But like once we like were watching, I was like interested.

Unknown 7:49

Okay. Can you just pull up the questionnaire? All right. I just have like a few images, so we were thinking that the best way to capture someone's attention would be maybe having like things like this around, and there are options which we want to ask you what makes you feel comfortable. So say that you're sitting over here, and there's something like this or something like this, something like this, or maybe a beautiful book with a screen attached to it. Would you engage with something like that? Would you sit down? Would it make you curious to maybe play around with it? I feel like if the screen was like static, it would work. You know what I mean? Like if there was like a screen with like the the writing of like the event

Unknown 8:23

Unknown 8:38

rather than the audio visual.

Unknown 8:39

Yeah, rather than the audio.

Unknown 8:41

Yeah.

Unknown 8:42

Interesting. And like which of these would you wanna Like, what would make it approachable?

Unknown 8:56

You like the book? I like

Unknown 9:01

the I like the setup of with Eve, but then like with that, but with a roof. Yeah.

Unknown 9:17

Okay. Awesome. Okay. So, where do you guys usually spend time alone, like between classes, or if you have time?

Unknown 9:26

Lately, like

Unknown 9:28

yeah, actually,

Unknown 9:30

I understand more than any other. And how much time do you spend usually? Sorry. How much time do you spend here? Like, is it? I know how. So something like this, if it existed right over here, would you interact with it, yeah, maybe. But like, I probably just interacted with it like the one time, you know. Yeah.

Unknown 9:59

I think it'd be nice if it was like the small thing I could hook up my phone to like play. So you don't have to do it in front of everyone. Yeah.

Unknown 10:04

Unknown 10:09

Yeah, that makes sense.

Unknown 10:11

Like maybe like next to it, there's also a QR code, like so you can do it on the thing, or you can like do it by yourself.

Unknown 10:20

No, that makes a lot of sense. Yeah, is that why also you didn't want to do like a video audio thing?

Unknown 10:25

A video.

Unknown 10:26

Yeah, like you wanted in it in text rather than

Unknown 10:30

oh, like to write out. I just don't know what to say. Yeah.

Unknown 10:36

Okay. Thank you so much for your time, guys.

Interview 4

Unknown 0:00

Be open about everything. Okay. Okay. Wait.

Unknown 0:03

Wait.

Unknown 0:04

I'm silly.

Unknown 0:06

Listen and discover. There's something left here.

Unknown 0:10

Or leave someone. Okay. I want to. I want to listen and discover. I don't really have anything to say. I'm nosy. Let's listen to. Someone was here before you. Now you get to hear what they have left.

Unknown 0:29

I

Unknown 0:29

reckon we do the surprise. What happened here? I remember what happened to

Unknown 0:37

it.

Unknown 0:41

Something from the. Let's see something from the boss. Okay, let's see what someone might find.

Unknown 0:52

Watch it. So this one is a video

Unknown 0:55

for the video for the teacher, and this one is a voice recording for so this is kind of is a wow. Okay. I want to give you a last-time warning. Okay. Okay.

Unknown 1:11

Thank you.

Unknown 1:14

Also, just a heads up. It's it's a little long. So if you're done, you can just press the answer. Okay.

Unknown 1:19

Queensland. A new kind of student is showing up under the sandstone arches of the Great Court. Guitars and pamphlets are doing as much teaching as lectures. Oh! A group calling itself Students for Democratic Action starts asking the questions nobody in Canberra wants asked about nuclear war, about poverty, about a government sending conscripts to a war few of them chose. It's like giving AI realms. Those are exactly my commands.

Unknown 1:45

Unknown 1:54
Oh,

Unknown 2:06
put a loophole

Unknown 2:12
in there. lunchtime forum, students debate conscription, race, capitalism, and each other out in the open every single day. Vietnam leads to civil liberties. Civil liberties lead to everything else. Okay, wait.

Unknown 2:41
Do we have to watch the whole thing? Okay, you don't have to. I'm done. Thanks.

Unknown 2:45
What did that echo make you feel? I was curious. I was definitely curious. I was like, yeah, I was curious. Why did you choose that? I would say I

Unknown 2:56

Unknown 3:00
don't know. I think because we don't necessarily know a lot of things. I mean, a lot of history of that's exactly what I was thinking. Not like what maybe what as widely accessible. It made me

Unknown 3:11
think that like, like they were here, and I was like, okay, wait. It's a very old uni. There's probably been like a lot of generations of people

Unknown 3:19
come through. Come

Unknown 3:20
through. We didn't know a lot about the history,

Unknown 3:26

and and this video made it more accessible.

Unknown 3:29

Yes, this incredible video. It's really hard to type on an iPad. Now just listen. Same story. Yeah,

Unknown 3:46

it's the same story. You don't have to today.

Unknown 3:47

The paths are familiar. The paths are familiar. It's a different aspect. Look, it didn't really grab me. Oh, he said the paths are familiar. Maybe it felt that. How can we? skip it because we didn't watch it. So oh, but they might need

Unknown 3:53

Unknown 4:02

Unknown 4:05

it. Okay, which way did you want this story?

Unknown 4:09

The film. I think the film.

Unknown 4:11

Yeah, I liked the film. I'm a visual learner, so that's good. I'm a visual gal. We're really earning this long. You're talking with you, honestly.

Unknown 4:36

Guys, what's going with you?

Unknown 4:38

The place. The seeing you cute and thinking of it historically, seeing UQ in a different, different era. The person you, what would you live with? Oh, oh, oh, I have something that I experienced here. I'll record it up to 60 seconds. Can you get it out? 60 seconds. Well, it's nothing crazy. It's like a funny thing. Okay. Um, part of the history at UQ is the ibises and how they steal your food? I've witnessed in the Great Court many girls' sushi rolls get taken right out of their hand by the ibis birds, and they're flying around and stealing from all the students. And that's like really part of our history. That's a good one. Leave this echo. Oh,

Unknown 4:55

Unknown 5:38

100. 144! Wow, maybe that looks good. So cute! That was awesome. Thanks, guys. So, what do you think of the experience? I think it's cool. No, I really like. I feel like the iPad like made it very like interactive and it was like clean design. I like the yeah the visuals, and it was like easy to like tap each thing and know where the journey was taking it. Yeah, and I liked that it gave us the option to listen to the sound or watch the video as well. So say that you're spending time here, and then there are these things around UQ campus that you can watch these videos on and share things. Would you interact with something. Yeah, I would, especially if I was like walking around and like, if there was something like that at the direct area that a place,

Unknown 6:22

Unknown 6:27

like something that

Unknown 6:28

where something happened, like this was the spot that, blah blah blah, happened. I would be interested to like learn the history of that. Okay, yeah. Okay, that's awesome. Okay, so just some images of like what kind of a model would you like? Would you like like something like this or something more where you can sit down and see a little video, or something where you can just hear it,

Unknown 6:41

Unknown 6:55

a big ear,

Unknown 6:56

or like a storybook, Harry Potter feels.

Unknown 6:59

This is cute. I I think

Unknown 7:02

I think

Unknown 7:04

what do you like, Grace?

Unknown 7:06

I feel like that one. I I mean I do like the storybook ones, but I feel like that seems the most accessible. Yeah, A to me seems like I feel like I'd be a little bit embarrassed to sit at C. I don't know why. Like the A like makes it a bit goofy, whereas like A or B, it's like okay, there's a nice screen and still has this ear, so you know you can listen. Yeah, yeah, yeah. Whereas like D and E is practical, but I don't think it's that practical because like are you physically having to get up to turn the page? No, no, no, just a screen that's attached. Okay, a storybook character. think it might be a bit too large.

Unknown 7:15

Unknown 7:38

Unknown 7:43

Unknown 7:44

Yeah. Again, I would feel like this feels like I'm more just like nonchalant, whereas this is like I'm sitting in front of everyone and I'm like got the story book like opening in front of me. So it's like a little scary. So I reckon A. Yeah, I think A.

Unknown 8:00

Okay, that's awesome. And where do you guys usually spend science on campus?

Unknown 8:05

Probably around the great.

Unknown 8:09

Yeah, probably here. I feel like it's like a good spot. Like, if like friends have, we all have stuff around in different areas, so it's like so easy to be like, oh, meet at the Great Court. And how much time do you usually spend? Uh, no one. I'm on campus for two days.

Unknown 8:19

Unknown 8:24

Yeah, a

Unknown 8:25

week. Yeah. So not like not a lot. Not that frequently, but like. But usually we try to like the days that we're here are like fully packed. So we'll be like here in the morning and in the afternoon. Like trying to have the whole day spent here in different areas. Yeah. Yeah.

Unknown 8:29

Unknown 8:39

Thank you so much for your time.
