THE PROBLEM

UQ's rich history is often hidden, fragmented and not easily accessible for new and international students.

Students can feel disconnected from the university's past, people and community.

There's no simple, engaging way for students to share their own stories or feel like they belong.

OUR GOAL

- [x] Create a welcoming, accessible space where students can discover UQ's history, share their own stories and feel part of the community.
- [x] Build connection, belonging and pride — past, present and future.

UQ Echo →
More than a history lesson.
It's a community.
